Call for Journal Editor

The Canadian Review of Sociology (CRS), established in 1964, is the official publication of the Canadian Sociological Association (CSA) and the flagship journal of the discipline in Canada.

The CRS provides an accessible and affordable publication venue for sociologists. The CSA is committed to ensuring that the work published in the journal is available to a global audience of scholars and to the public.

The CSA is now welcoming applications for the role of Executive Editor of the Canadian Review of Sociology beginning June 2025 - June 2029.

The ideal candidate will uphold high levels of sociological discourse and promote the prominence of the journal in Canada and around the world. They will be an established scholar affiliated with a Canadian university, with broad interests, an appreciation for diverse theoretical approaches and methodologies, a keen sense of the prominent intellectual issues confronting the discipline, and a record of publication in peer-reviewed journals.

The CSA provides funding to the journal for communications, editorial support, travel to the association's annual meeting, and an honorarium for the Executive Editor. Knowledge of both official languages is an asset but not required for the position.

The CSA is committed to the values and principles of equity, diversity, inclusion, and decolonization (Operating Standards and Principles on Equity). We recognize and honour the intersectionality of equity-based identities and therefore invite and encourage the application of members from marginalized groups, including Indigenous peoples, racialized persons, persons with disabilities, persons who identify as women, and/or LGBTQ2A+.

Applications or nominations for the position of Executive Editor - including a cover letter outlining the candidate's plans for the journal and a curriculum vitae - should be sent to office@csa-scs.ca by 3 March 2025.
